THE PROMOTERS of the REFORM MODEL SCHOOL most respectfully request parents and guardians to consider the essential advantages enjoyed by the pupils. The school has been opened with the purpose of establishing an entire reform in education. The pupils have no heavy tasks to commit to memory; every study is made to assume the most attractive form. They receive a thorough English education, with the undermentioned useful accomplishments included, at less charge than at many schools for English only. The class-rooms are most comfortable and convenient. For the boarders there is all that an English home can supply, with a most liberal table.

The success of the School (in only its second quarter) is such as to stimulate the promoters to spare no pains to make it one of the first ladies schools in the Southern hemisphere.

Central Committee Rooms, 16th August, 1870.

TO THE ELECTORS OF WEST SYDNEY.

GENTLEMEN,—I have once more accepted office as Secretary for Lands, and a member of the Szecutive Council, and am again a candidate for the seat in the Logislative Assembly to which you spontaneously and generously called nie a few mouths age, with the desire, I helieve, that I should again become a member of the Government, that I should again become a member of the Government, that I should again become a member of the Government, and my own views on public questions are pretty well known to you, therefore I need only say that if you do me the great honour of again electing me your representative, I will discharge all the duties thereto appertaining faithfully and zealously.

I confess that I feel especial gratification at being called at the present time to take charge of the administration of the Tublic Lands.

For very many years land legislation has had my careful and earnest consideration; and if change is to be made in the present laws, the time is specifly approaching when the question can be entertained with peculiar facility, and under circumstances likely to afford the most perfect fair play to all classes interested in them.

The laws as they stand have appeared to casual observers much complicated, and wanting in clearness. Those objections spring mainly from the necessary I was under, in framing the laws, to provide for the lands held under the old Orders in Council and otherwise, as well as for the intended holdings under the new laws.

I appeared to me mest important that no semblance of repudiation of the engagements of the State to individuals should be permitted, and therefore provisions somewhat complicated were necessary.

A few days after the expiration of the year 1871 all the engagements of the Government with relation to the public lands other than those created under the Regulations of the 22nd of February, 1858, and under the general engagement in the colony in which the question could be begineted. It will

BRIDGE OVER THE HAWKERDURY.—The experiences occasioned by the late floods in the loss of property bhrough the want of a bridge over the river at Windsor, has induced a regitation of this question, and we understand that petitions to the Governor and Legislative Assembly are in course of signature, praying for a sum sufficient to erect a saitable bridge. The slow and uncertain process of conveyance by the punt is one of the reasons set fort in favour of the necessity of a bridge. For the last half-year the punt has not been able to be worked for one clear month. A rise of a few feet in the river stops it from working, and at low tide, on the other hand, it is now liable to go aground on a sand-bank, delaying the traffic till the return of the tide and occasioning great inconvenience. A bridge here would no doubt afford the means of as ving a vest amount of valuable property in flood time, which under such circumstances as the present, must be destroyed. This alone is a cogent reason in justification of the petitioners, and it is hoped that the expediency of a compliance with their wishes will be allowed, and the necessary amount granted. It has been stated by practical men that a suitable bridge could be put up for £10,000.

THE ALLEGED GOLD-FIELD.—A number of persons from this neighbourhood visited Mr. McCauley's rumoured gold-field, but the accounts of the way to the resolution of the further consideration of this question.

Mr. James Assough, J.P., was moved into the chair R. Dieck, W. Board, W. Gosper, W. Doan, J. Shewart, Greenwell, and W. Moses. Mr. Simona seconded the resolution, which was put and carried manimously. Mr. Richard Cavanough then rose and spoke at considerable length against the erection of Windsor into a municipality. He did not believe that Windsor was in a position to receive municipal government, and a great many were not prepared to meet the taxation that would be incurred. A large amount of the property in town was unproductive, and very little rates would be derivable. There was no proper material about Windsor for making roads, and improvements in that way would be found very expensive. He believed a great many had signed, and some had taken an active part in the movement who did not know what they were doing. The shopkeepers were in favour of it because they knew that all the money that would be raised would filter into their peckets. However, if they thought a corporation, but he thought they ought to try and save as much money as they could for the improvements after they had obtained their numicipality. With that view an application should be at once made to the Government for the alignment of the streets. Under the Towns Police Act they were entitled to sak the Government to do this; it had been done in Richmend and other towns. He would therefore propose,—"That a memorial be presented to the Government to send a surveyor to align the streets, and that the committee appointed that evening take the necessary steps for that purpose." Mr. J. Johnston, J.P., seconded the resolution, which was put and carried. Several questions were then put to the chairman respecting the amount of special rates that could be raised, all of which seemed to be antifactorily explained by the chairman respecting the amount of special rates that could be raised, all of which seemed to be antifactorily explained by the chairman from the Act. A vote of thank was very orderly, broke up.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 20, 1870.

In the Legislative Assembly, yesterday.

Ministers in answer to questions said,—that the endowment to the borough Council of Newcastle was withheld until the expenses of the audit were paid; that the railway statistics would be laid on the table that afternoon; that the information concerning newspaper advertising would be laid on the table on Tuesday next; that the money voted for the Gunning and Burrowa road would be expended immediately; that the returns relative to committals and revenue collected at Young, would be laid on the table on Tuesday; that the whole question of District Quarter Sessions Courts was under consideration, and when decided, proper provision would be made at the towns fixed upon for holding these courts; that notice had already been given of some of the measures alluded to in the Governor's Speech of 28th September, 1869, and others would be introduced as circumstances permitted; that information regarding the grants for public worship should be furnished at the earliest opportunity; that the Government were not sware that eight out of the eleven magistrates at Ulladulla were related to each other, and no complaints of that Bench had been made; that the intention of the Government with regard to the stamp duties would be communicated to the House when the Financial Statement was made; and that it was impracticable to separate the money raised by loan in the manner indicated by Sir James Martin's questions.

A bill to abolish capital punishment was brought in by Mr. Brookes, and read a first time.

The Speaker laid on the table his warrant, appointing Mr. R. Drives a member of the Committee of Elections and Qualifications, in the place of Mr. E.

A bill to allow municipal districts to restrain the number of public-houses in their districts, was brought in by Mr. Warans, and read a first time.

The House went into Committee to consider the propriety of additesing the Governor to place on the Estimates the sum of $7000, for the construction of a bridge over the Shoalhaves River. After a long dis-

The motion, declaring Mr. Eckford's seat vacant, was agreed to without division.

Mr. Brookes moved, as a question of privilege, that the case of the acceptance of the office of arbitrator by Sir James Martin, in the case of the Crown v. Hughes, be referred to the Committee of Elections and Qualifications to decide whether in so doing he had vacated his seat. From the course taken by the debate last night, he had been led to believe that there had been an infringement of the Constitution Act, and, to remove doubt on the subject, it had better be referred to the proper constituted authority. Sir James Martin explained that an arbitrator was not an officer, but that the moment he was sworn in, he became a judge bound to decide upon the evidence. Neither was he paid by any fee, for the award.

Mr. Garrett pointed out that many similar cases had arisen and would again arise, and, therefore, it would be much better that the House should have an authoritative opinion on the question.

Mr. Sawlel stated that it had been mainly at his would be much better that the House should have an authoritative opinion on the question.

Mr. Samuri, stated that it had been mainly at his suggestion that the Crown Solicitor had asked Sir-James Martin to act for the Crown, the Attorney-General having been retained against the Crown. He had never for a moment thought this to be an acceptance of office under the Constitution Act.

Mr. Forester admitted that there were great dis-

Mr. FORSTER admitted that there was a great dis-inction between the office of a commissioner and that of arbitrator, and hardly thought the latter to be an office of emolument under the Crown.

Mr. Winderen remarked that an arbitrator did not bold an office of profit under the Crown, for, being as a Judge, he was no longer an efficer, and was not removable.

as a Judge, he was no longer an efficer, and was not removable.

Mr. BROOKES replied, and the motion was put and negatived on division by 32 to 6.

Mr. G. A. LLOVE moved that no new business be entered upon after 11 o'clock p.m. He should press this to a division, because it was impossible for members who had business to attend to during the day to give proper attention to the legislation of the country after 11 o'clock at might. They ought to adopt the motion, not merely for their own sakes, but for the sake of the Speaker, the officers, and the Press.

Mr. Cowers opposed the motion as an absurd one, which had been already tried, and found to act very badly.

which had been already tried, and round to acceed, badly.

Mr. Piddinoron affirmed that, during the time this same rule had guided the House, it had been invariably found to act well.

Mr. Garrett held a totally opposite opinion. When in force, members had talked against time in order to prevent some motion to which they were opposed from being brought forward. It was owing to this abuse that the sessional order had been allowed to drop.

to this abuse that the sessional order had been allowed to drop.

Mr. Wilson and Mr. Tunks supported the motion, and Mr. Forstrin and Mr. Parkes opposed it. Mr. Litoro replied, and the motion was negatived by 17 to 10.

On the motion of Mr. Wilson, correspondence regarding insulting expressions used by the Collector of Customs to an officer of II. M. 18th Regiment, and on the motion of Mr. Pinningron returns relating to loans, were ordered to be laid on the table.

The House adjourned at twenty-server minutes to 7.

THE reflections which have been made by of particular individuals to the Press, and consequently their concern in postal charges, had displayed more haste and injustice than states manlike judgment. They seem to assume that persons called by the very nature of their duties to discuss public questions are to be silent whenever it can be imagined that they ouch upon interests in which they share.

Our readers are witnesses of the extreme moderation with which we have always treated this question, and we may add that its abolition is of far more consequence to the public than to the daily Press. A very large proportion of our daily issue never passes through the Post Office. Those who receive the newspaper through the post are charged with the cost. Such charges are, no doubt, an inconvenien to all newspapers, but not by any means of such pressure as to create that impatience of the burden which would induce a journalist the burden which would induce a journalist of the most moderate patriotism to sacrifice the interests of the country.

Whatever duties are imposed on the material employed in the production of newspapers, or charges on their circulation, fall not upon the proprietors, but upon the public. This elementary fact must certainly be known to those who declaim against the Press. There is no duty levied at the Customs which is not paid by the consumer. It is thus rather childish to flourish the amount paid by an establishment at the Customs, as if it were a loss to the firm, or to suppose that the removal of this charge would not lead to an immediate adjustment in the price of the commodity. that ge would not lead to an immediate adjustment in the price of the commodity. It might indeed be possible to impose such a charge as would diminish the circulation of the newspaper; but the interests that would be at first sacrificed are not those of a great journal, but the struggling pro-prietors of the smaller publications.

The charges for the postage of newspapers have never been treated by us as an injustice. We have never disputed that to carry a piece of paper hundreds of miles is worth a penny, small demand. When it is considered that besides carrying the weight, the Post Office makes itself morally answerable for the delivery of this paper, and to do so regularly within a few days or hours, we are quite prepared to admit that it is the cheapest service performed, and worth all the money. As a question, therefore, between the individual who ends the paper and the public carrier, there is to room for complaint whatever, and we make

But does this comprehend the whole ques-tion? Are there no other considerations to be taken into account? Has the State no interest taken into account? Has the State no interest in newspapers—in their circulation, in their competition, and in their influence? Have they done nothing to facilitate legislation and Government? Do they render no service by the record of the proceedings of Courts? The greater part of a newspaper is occupied with public affairs; with the statement of proceedings in Parliament. The public safety is promoted by exposing the designs of sharpers—the newest inventions of thieves and rogues—in putting the people on their guard against impositions which are thus defeated at once. The interests of the State are promoted by the record of all kinds of public business, which column after column occupies the pages of public journals. The extension, therefore, of facilities for the circulation of the newspaper is ties for the circulation of the newspaper is an interest of the State, and although there may be journals inferior to their vocation, there is no institution like the Press, which, in its normal condition, has such power of self-correction—a machinery so self-balancing, and having within itself so many and such effectual checks.

Doubtless after the Press has been subject to despotic laws, and suddenly released from their control, it is liable to be abused. Revolutionary fever may make it an instrument of evil; but after liberty has been long enjoyed, and the limits of law and custom have circumscribed discussion, it becomes the not however to be treated as a party question.

On the Opposition benches the abolition of the

On the Opposition benches the abolition of the postage duty has been advocated with a strength of argument which it would not be easy to confute.

Shortly after the breaking up of Sir J. Martin's Ministry, Mr. Parress delivered a speech on this subject which contained bne of the best and ablest expositions of this question we have received for some years. Mr. Parress may be taunted for having delayed this speech until he quitted a position to give it effect. It would be more appropriate to condemn its inconsistency if he should resume office without demanding the recognition of those principles which he laid down. Such taunts, however, have very little weight with taunts, however, have very little weight with us. There are cases when those who cous. There are cases when those who cooperate must sacrifice something, and in judging of their conduct we must compare the objects of their union with the points which they surrender. We have no doubt that Mr.
PARKES was justified in holding office in a Ministry which retained the postage, however much he objected to it, since a charge amounting to a few thousand pounds only was far less important than the general principles of an Administration in which he concurred.

We do not expect our Government will Important than the general principles of an Administration in which he concurred.

We do not expect our Government will advance beyond the parent State in reduction or reform; but it is very desirable that a colonial Minister should keep his eyes on those methods by which business is facilitated at home, and services rendered to the public cheaply with increasing profit to the Treasury. A very slight inadvertence would sometimes occasion a serious obstruction and a heavy loss. The different systems adopted in various communities, whether foreign or colonial, are continually creating embarrassment. Recent statements in this journal show how absurd are the postal charges from California to Melbourne. On the other hand, it was stated by an English newspaper that 30,000 circulars were sent to Belgium to be posted by a single firm, because the charge via Belgium was a halfpenny less than in London.

It was said by Louis the Great that he desired to see a fowl in the pot of every poor family. Perhaps an English sovereign would change the form of diet for the roast beef of Old England; but we do not think it unworthy of a colonial statesman to wish to see a newspaper in every house, and every work-man capable of reading it. There will be much trash circulated doubtless, but there is means by which a scattered community can be induced to read, and solitary families interested in reading, but by circulating newspapers, which bring them at once into communication with whatever passes in the world.

FOUR members of the Assembly who recently waited on the MINISTER FOR WORKS with respect to the state of the roads in the northeastern district of the colony, expressed heir agreement with him that effective nunicipal action was the proper way to detheir agreement with him that effective municipal action was the proper way to deal with local works, but that it would not be fair to force this action on one part of the colony and yet leave another part to draw at will on the central Treasury. How long will it be before a majority of the members of the Assembly will express the same opinion? The moment they do, one of the great difficulties moment they do, one of the great difficulties in the way of our government will be removed, and we may add also one of the greatest dangers to the purity of its administration.

We have self-government, and yet to make it safe we must carry out the theory more into detail. The colony is too large to be treated as one parish, and local affairs cannot be all properly dealt with treated as one parish, and local affairs cannot be all properly dealt with at head-quarters. It is absolutely necessary to subdivide the business of administration, in order that it may be carried out efficiently. The multitude of little matters is too great for a Central Parliament to attend to; and the distance of many localities is also too great to allow of central supervision. We have already had plenty of experience as to the great waste of money attendant on excessive centralisation. There is, in the first instance, a waste of time, which is often in itself equivalent to a waste of money, for in many matters promptitude is the essence of many matters promptitude is the essence of economy. Works have been often undertaken on an unnecessary scale because there is no check on local extravagance, and the public property is not carefully looked after even by those for whose use it exists, when they think they are not responsible for it.

Theoretically Paylinguant has admitted that Theoretically Parliament has admitted that tory working of the policy of self-government. But the theory has not yet resolved itself into practice. The law did not establish a municipal system, it only allowed it to be established. With very slight exceptions, however, the Act has remained a dead letter, and the principleous it confers have been said. and the privileges it confers have been

It is curious to note the indifference thus presented in this colony with the eager anxiety exhibited in some of the countries of the old world to secure the opportunities of municipal action that we so lightly value. The author of an article in the North British Review on the subject of decentralisation in France and Prussia says:—"Decentralisation is the enfranchisement of localities from the abuses of tutelary government; its end is self-government. On government; its end is self-government. Of the Continent, self-government is becoming the criterion, or even, in the eyes of many political writers, the very foundation of po-litical liberty. Local franchises, it is said, litical liberty. Local franchises, it is said, accustom the people to public life; the administration of the commune is the best preparation for the administration of the province, and this in its turn for the government of the country; men who cannot resist with firmness and propriety the encroachments of local authority, can never effectually oppose those of the central Government. They cannot preserve their liberty unless they know how to defend their rights." The constitutional liberals of the Continent The constitutional liberals of the Continen The constitutional liberals of the Continent look forward to municipal action as the best means of diminishing the excessive despotic power of arbitrary Governments, and having served that end they regard them as being likely to be perpetually beneficial to train the people to the duties of citizenship in a free State. It is primarily of chizenship in a free state. It is primarily did on political grounds that they are so anxious at to extort the concession of local self-government, although it is admitted that local m works themselves will be also better attended to if regulated by local authority. Such an cussion, Mr. Kelly moved the Chairman out of the hair, no resolution having been come to, it being under consideration. The House resumed.

On the order of the day for resuming the debate on Sir James Martin's motion, for declaring vacant the cast of Mr. J. Eckford, Mr. Wilson rose, and produced a declaration from Mr. R. W. Thomson, in proof that the Mr. J. Eckford who had become insolvent, was Mr. Eckford the member for Wollombi.

The motion, declaring Mr. Eckford's seat vacant, was agreed to without division.

The present Government has proposed to abolish the postage on newspapers. We have never asked for it to the sacrifice of the financial circlit of the colony. We believe that the will be eagerly embraced as a circlesion to popular aspirations, and circlesi inesia. It would be eagerly embraced as a concession to popular aspirations, and is in instalment of political liberty. But in this colony we do not seem to care about it. Nobody thinks he wants conceating, and different constituencies think that they will fare better by dipping their lands into the public Treasury than by dipping them into their own pockets, forgetting that the Treasury can only be supplied by money somehow or other taken out of their pockets.

The plan of allowing municipalities to grow up voluntarily has not answered expectation. Very few have been established compared with Acty few have been established compared with what there ought to be, and even they have with difficulty struggled into existence. Some of them are on too small a scale, and in other places the agitation has only resulted in feud between little townships and large landholders, the latter wishing to escape texation altogether, and the former wishing o impose it without conferring any corre

The existing law, therefore, having been so far a failure, the question arises whether it is not expedient for Parliament to take the initiative—to divide the colony, or at any rate the more settled portion of it into nunicipal areas, and to appoint wardens to collect and disburse local taxes until such time as the people prefer to adopt a regular municipal government. It is often said that the commentary of the commentary of the said that the commentary of the said that the commentary of the commen that the country cannot bear taxation of this kind, but if that is true the country this kind, but if that is true the country ought to go without the improvements that are being annually sanctioned, and no one can deny that these improvements are local benefits, and add to the value of local properties, and if those who reap the benefits cannot afford to pay the cost, there is no justice in compelling other people to improve their property for them. For the purpose of effecting public improvements there is no kind of property that can be so fitly taxed as property in land.

It is said that there are difficulties in the way of establishing anything like a system of way of establishing anything like a system of nunicipal government. Of this there can be no doubt, but there are difficulties also in no doubt, but there are difficulties also in the way of going on as we are at present. Every year makes the general revenue increasingly responsible for a sort of expenditure which ought not to be a burden on the general revenue at all. Every year the commerce of the colony is threatened for the sake of increasing the value of realised estate. Every year the cramble for public money becomes more fierce, and the difficulty increases of carrying on government without a special regard to the gratitude or resentment of particular congratitude or resentment of particular con-tituencies. This sort of thing cannot last for ver. It must, in course of time, work its own cure. But as the evil is clearly existent and clearly growing, it would be wisdom on the part of the Legislature to arrest its further development, and to avert by anticipation disasters that may otherwise bring disgrace, INTERCOLONIAL INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION .-The stewards in sections III. and IV. were again briefly engaged yesterday in arranging the exhibits as they arrived. A large number of pointings and works of art under section I. were received at the building, and some of them have been already con-signed to their places. The duties of the stewards in he above sections would be greatly facilitated, and xhibitors would find it much to their advantage also, f no time was lost in forwarding the exhibits. If he gentlemen who have been entrusted with the task of arranging them, had all the exhibits before their view they would be much better able to arrange them and place them in positions where their good qualities would be displayed to the greatest advantage. Perhaps exhibitors will bear in mind the necessity of sending their exhibits in on the days advertised for their reception, as the stewards will then be in attendance. The stewards in section XIII. (agricultural department) will be in attendance on Monday to receive agricultural implements and machinery; and Tuesday has been appointed the day for the reception of exhibits in sections II., V., and VII. (annagricultural.) The stewards and judges of live stock are also requested by advertisement to attend at the Park at 10 c clock on Monday. The Secretary of the Victorian Commission, Mr. G. C. Levey, arrived from Melbourne a few days ago, and entered upon his duties. He attends at the office of the Agricultural Society, at the Exhibition Building, every morning at 10 s.m., where parties interested can consult him. Contrary to the expectations of some persons, there is likely to be very little confusion in arranging the exhibits. Notwithstanding a large number of articles have been received, the work of the stewards has gone on with extreme smoothness, affording a striking contrast to the preliminary operations of the last exhibition. The painting of the interior is nearly completed. The scaffolding round the turrets in front of the building has all been removed, and the architectural beauty of the structure may now be seen without hindrance. Viewed from a short distance, the building has a very imposing appearance, and a nearer approach reveals to still greater perfection its massive proportions. On Thursday afternoon his Excellency the Governor, and M. de la Richerie (the new Governor of New Caledonia), together with several ladies and gentlemen, visited the building. M. de la Richerie was very much struck with some colonial made tweeds, manufactured at the late Mr. Ebeworth's establishment, and which have been sent for exhibition. He expressed his intention of bringing under the notice of the people of New Caledonia the for exhibition. He expressed his intention of bringing or exhibition. He expressed his intention of oringing under the notice of the people of New Caledonia the fact that cloths, of a superior description, are manu-factured in this colony, with a view to encouraging a trade between the two colonies in this description of

THE LIABILITY OF RATEPAYERS.—In a case THE LIABILITY OF RATEFAYERS.—In a case heard on Tuesday last, namely—Municipality of Balmain v. Shepherd, the plaintiffs sued to recover amount of rates due by a ratepayer of the municipality, with costs attendant upon the issue of a warrant for recovery. It appears that the defendant tendered the amount of rates, but declined to pay the balliff's fees, and the municipality, considering they were entitled to a sum over and above the amount of rates, instituted an action in the District Court. The defence raised was that the municipality could not recover the fee until the warrant was actually in force, and his Honor, in delivering his judgment yesterday, upheld this objection, and gave a verdict to the defendant.

The Prince of Wales Opera House.—The large and fashionable audience present last evening on the occasion of Mr. Mathews's benefit must, to some extent, compensate for the inadequate patronage he received during the previous evenings of this week. It must be very disheartening to a great actor, who could at the present time attract crowded houses in either London or Paris, to play to smaller business in Australia. Bad times, and not any lack of appreciation, may be pleaded at present by the Sydney patrons of theatrical entertainments, who certainly mustered in great force last night, and were rewarded by witnessing a first-class performance and buriesque acting of a higher school than has ever been seen here before. Mr. Bartlett's delineation of Becswing in "Twenty minutes with a Tiger," opened the entertainment, and went so well that it seemed to bring the audience into a humour to enjoy the pieces which followed. The first of these was Brough's one-act comedy, "The Comical Duchess," selected for Mrs. Mathews's debut on the Sydney boards. Her appearance was the signal for prolonged cheers, which for some time prevented the action of the piece. When they ceased she at once entered into the performance of the part of the Countess de L'Espalier with the east school of secting. Mr. Mathews, as Chevalier de Vilbrue was equally at home, and between them they kept the house in a roar until the curtain fell, when they were twice recalled, and bowed their acknowledgments. A similar ovation awaited them at the close of Planche's "Golden Fleece," in which Mrs. Mathews made such a hit in London as to secure it a lengthened run. Her "Medea" is a model piece of burlesque acting, and the rapidity and ease of the transitions from the tragic to the humourous remarkably clever. It was also very evident, from the power with which the graver passages were delivered that Mrs. Mathews's forte is not confined to one line of her profession, and that she can achieve as decided a success THE PRINCE OF WALES OPERA HOUSE .- The Coars.—The match of the non-commissioned officers of the 18th with the Sydney Battalion of V. R. having fallen through, Captain Coates sent them a challenge on behalf of his Cadet Corps. This was gladly accepted, by the permission of Lieutenant-Colonel Eliliot. The match took place on Thursday last on the Newigton range, under the following conditions:—Ten competitors each side; ranges, 200, 500, and 600 yards; five shots at each range; Hythe position. The team of the 18th left Sydney by the 11 o'clock steamer, and on arriving at Newington were received with three cheers from the Cadeta, who were formed on the wharf under the command of Captain Coates. The shooting commenced at 200 yards, and the Cadeta headed their opponents at this range by some points—107 and 100 being the respective scores, Cadet E. Webbbeing the top scorer of the Newington with 18, and sergeants M'Henry and Tadd tying with 14 points for the 18th. On the conclusion of the shooting at the first range the competitors were invited to luncheon, which through the kindness of Mrs. Fletcher was provided on the ground. In fact, the whole affair resolved itself into a sort of picnic, and the 18th expressed themselves highly delighted with the place and their reception. At the 500 yards the cadets scored 96 and their opponents 56, sergeant Hurst for the former being top score with 18; and for the latter, Sergeant Murphy, with 11. At the 600 yards, the Cadets again appeared to the fore, scoring 86, and the 18th 45. The total score of the Newington team being 289, and that of the 18th 201, thus leaving the Cadet corps the victors of this interesting match by 88 points. The wind was very strong and variable throughout the day, which will partly account for the small scores of some of the best shots

THE INTERCOLONIAL INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.

Fine weather has done woxders for the Exhibition. Mr. Young, the Corporation, and the Agricultural Society have all reason to be thank. ful for the change that has occurred; and although it is not desirable to work amidst clouds of dust, dust is preferable to rain, and the dust may be laid in some measure if the Corporation will kindly keep their water carts at work upon the public roads around the Park.

The ground around the building is now beginning to look shapely. The terraces are nearly finished, gravelled, and sodded, and add vastly to the general appearance. The lamps are placed, and the roads to either end of the building are assuming a finished shape. Something is yet wanted to complete the road from Cleveland-street to the Pavilion, the banks being in a rough state, but we hope that this will be all looked to before the opening.

The buildings in the Park are very nearly ready for their tenants, and exceedingly pretty will they look when well stocked—eave the pun! A shed is going up for machinery in motion, of which there is a fair amount, and the refreshment pavilions are making way. Additional space has been allowed to Mr. Muscutt for feeding visitors. He has been permitted to take possession of the tunnel under the roadway for the purpose of preventing anything objectionable there, and he obtained permission to erect a booth, should it be necessary, elsewhere.

So many of our readers have now had an opportunity to form their own opinion of what the inside of the Exhibition building looks like, that it is unnecessary for us to say much more about it. We feel more inclined to deal out some laudatory remarks to Mr. Young for his liberal behaviour in doing host to from 4000 to 5000 guests. A man who places so generous a construction upon his relations to his workpeeple—apart from the honour he did to some thousands of others—deserves to stand well. WATER SUPPLY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sin,—In your issue of to-day, containing an account of the resumed discussion by the Royal Society on the Water Supply to the city, Mr. Charles Watt is thus reported to have spoken of me:—"In conclusion he called attention to a letter by Mr. E. S. Hill, published in the Herald, remarking that he thought it wrong that while a discussion on any subject was pending before the Society a member should discuss the same matter in the Press. It was unwise and certainly unusual. He complained too that the writer of this letter should apply the term 'bosh' to what was brought before the society. It might be necessary, or advisable to place some resolution on the records against members discussing in the Press questions that were under the consideration of the Society.

I think, Sir, that the pretensions of the Royal Society to perfect immunity from criticism in the columns of the Press, whether such criticism proceeds from members or not; will hardly be tolerated either by numbers or the public.

I claim the right to discuss a public question in any place where I have a right to appear, and under any form that I may conceive the public interest to be advanced by its discussion.

I possess the right to discuss the question before the Royal Society. I did so. With your permission I wrote in your paper; and, with your permission, will do so again, if I have anything to say which I may think it desirable in the interest of the community to publish. As I cannot recognice any power in the Royal Society to restrain me from writing, so I cannot accept as conclusive any refined criticisms upon my letters, nor admit the right of the Royal Society to entertain complaints of my good taste.

If Mr. Watt, or anybody else, places such a resolution on the records as he appears to think may be necessary or advisable, I shall be in my place to enter an earnest but respectful protest against such a gross invasion of freedom of discussion.

PRESERVED MEAT.

TRESERVED MEAT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—Among #II the different processes for preserving meat which have of late been brought before the public, the one most calculated to become a permanent process has escaped the notice of any of the Australian experimentors.

The plan I alude to was patented at the close of last year by a Mr. Richard Jones, an East India merchant, in Botolph-lane, by which he endeavours to retain the solidity of the mest by fixing an exhaust apparatus above the bath centaining it during the preservation process, the air contained in the mest being driven by the heat to its extremities, it is removed by the exhaust apparatus, which is applied two or three times during the process of cooking. By this method a temperature of 212: Fahrenheit is sufficient for cooking, and recourse need not be had to muriate of lime (or more properly chloride of calcium) to raise the temperature of the solution in the bath. I have tried it experimentally and found it to answer very well, the meat resembling a joint of roasted meat more than any preserved meat I have yet tasted. I also found it stood the usual test of a continual temporature of 95: F. for twelve days.

THOMAS SHOVELLER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—Although official ediquete will not allow me to enter into a newspaper controversy on purely official matters, which are sure to come fully before the public in another shape, I must, with reference to the letter of Mr. Bayley in this morning's Herold, claim the permission to tell your readers that I have just directed to be sent to the Tressury more than forty written documents in proof of my statement, read in the Assembly by the Honourable the Colonial Tressurer, to the effect that for the last ten years there has been an order in this department, that no official documents are allowed to be copied without the Collector's express permission. Several of these documents are in Mr. Bayley's own handwriting, or in that of his clerk, and are applications for permission to inapect papers, which in no other way could he have obtained, except "clandestinely," as I venture again to call the obtaining from an extra clerk documents which he dared not ask for in the regular way.

Yet in face of scores of such applications from merchants and from every squart in Sydney, including himself, filed here, and extending from 1860—the date of the order—to the 26th May in the present year, Mr. Bayley has the intrepidity to say "I never knew of any order in existence refusing Constom Homes agents access to any documents."

DEATH OF A CHARTIST,-The Hobart Town

Custom House, 19th August.

DEATH OF A CHARTIST.—The Hobart Town Mercury, of the 11th instant, states that William Cuffey, one of the London Chartists of 1848, died last month at the Brickfields Invalid Depot; at the advanced age of 82. Deceased was a tailor by trade, and had been employed during his residence in the colony by one of the principal shops in Hobart Town; but ill-health and advancing years prevented his carning a livelihood for some time past, and he ultimately had to succumb to the stern necessity of taking refuge at the Brickfields Asylum in October last. The deceased arrived here with others in the ship Adelside about the latter end of 1850, as a victim of his prominence in the political agitation, fomented by the revolution of France, when the final effort was made by the Chartists to obtain the extensive reforms which contemplated universal suffrage, equal electoral districts, vote by ballot, annual Parliaments, no property qualification for members, and payment for members of Parliament for their services, the London Tomes of the period referred to William Cuffey as having, like Hannibal, "sworn his children to eternal emity to the enemies of his country." Within the last sixteen or eighteen years, deceased availed himself of many opportunities to express his strong political feelings against which, in the extreme freedom of the Tasmanian constitution, there was no barrier. He particularly distinguished himself in the agitation for the amendment of the masters' and servants' law of the colony, and being a fluent and an effective speaker, he was always popular with the working classes. The exertions of Cuffey and other prominent advocates for the operative classes contributed in a great degree to the settlement of the masters' and servants (question on a satisfactory basis. An amended Act was passed by the Legislature of the day, and we are not aware that the provisions of the Act have since been taken exception to. Deceased took a prominent part in election matters, and weut in strongly for the individual rights of wor

The dulness prevalent for some time still characterises the import markets, and causes sales of goods held by others than the regular importing houses to be forced at very low rates. The breadstuffs market has a hardening tendency, especially for South Australian sorts. The only shipments advised as coming at present from that source arrived to-day, per A. H. Badger and Lily. Adelaide flour is quoted at £15 to £16 for best, and £13 10s. upwards for inferior. Most of the Sydney millers have raised their quotations for bakers parcels of silk dressed to £14 10s.; other descriptions range from £12 10s. to £13 10s. Transactions in wheat have been nominal. Cornsacks are held for an advance owing to another report of a speculative demand in Transactions in wheat have been nominal. Cornsacks are held for an advance owing to another report of a speculative demand in Melbourne. Woolpacks are also firmer. Sales of coffee are confined to Plantation at 9½d. to 9½d., good Java and Manila are scarce. Chicory in trade parcels has been quitted at 2½d. to 3d. There is a steady sale for dried fruits at late rates, very prime muscatels are scarce. For good samples of white herrings there is a good sale; dried ling is also wanted; 1 lb. salmon is easier, sardines are also in better supply. Groceries and oilmen's stores have not improved owing to heavy stocks, and quotations are nominal. Kerosene oil is lower, 2s. 5d. has been accepted for a line; retailers' lots bring 2s. 6d. to 2s. 7d. Castor oil has advanced to 6½d. for small quantities. Liquors are moving slowly. Sales of leading brands of bulk ale on the spot and to arrive, have been made at advanced rates, and have brought good second brands into more request. Brandies are offering at more favourable terms. Martell's bulk has been quitted at about 6s. Hennessy's pale in wood and glass is held at former rates; second class brands have scarcely any quotable price. Sales of Lowndes' rum have taken place at 4s., inferior is worth from 3s. 8d. to about 3s. 10d. No sales of rice have been made, except little lots, which afford no indication of the value of a parcel. Sugars are improving. There was a good attendance at Messrs. Stubbs and Co.'s sale to-day, and a considerable portion of the cargo ex Isle of France together with other lines were disposed of. Medium white crystals realised £39 17s. 6d. to £36 15s.; ration and low counters, £31 10s. to £36 15s.; ration and low counters, £31 10s. to £34. The Sugar Company's quotations are—Loaf, £52; yellow counters, £36 10s. to £36 15s.; ration and low counters, £31 10s. to £34. The Sugar Company's quotations are—Loaf, £52; snowdrop, £48; crystals, £45; No. 1 pieces, £42; no mark, £40; yellow, £38; No. 3 pieces, £34. There is very little inquiry for teas, as the trade prefer waiting for the new crop, shipments of which may be looked for

SUGAR CULTIVATION AT THE CLARENCE.

(Abridged from the Ecaminer, August 16.)

ONE of the largest meetings ever known on the North Arm was held at the Public School, Chatsworth Island, Clarence River, on Tuesday evening, 9th instant. This meeting had been convened by Mr. Melmoth Hall, chiefly for the purpose of acquainting the farmers with the price the Colonial Sugar Refining Company had instructed him to offer them for their cane, and also to learn how much cane the farmers estimated they had ready for manufacturing this season, and for the discussion of other matters in connection with the all-absorbing question of sugar-cane growing.

The Rev. John H. Garven, having been unanimously void to the chair, proceeded to address Mr. Hall relative to the price. He would urge Mr. Hall, before finally settling what he would give, to take into his most serious consideration the three following circumstances, without which, he considered, the Sugar Company would be desling unfairly by the farmers, and probably in the end do thremselves much injury. First, then, he would ask Mr. Hell to remember the very unfavourable state of the weather during the past season, which had prevented numbers of the farmers from paying that attention to their cane which they would otherwise have bestowed upon it. Secondly, that Mr. Hall would bear in mind the depressing and di-heartening effect the failure of the Belmore Sugar Works had had on the farmers, who had disposed of their cane to that company, but had not been able to get them to take it; and, even in some instances where it had been taken, they had not been able to get the money for it. From whetever cause the failure had resulted, the effect on the minits of the cane growers had been most dispiriting; both on those who had alreedy planting, and on those who were centemplating planting. Thirdly, that the season was drawing on, and it was the general opinion of the farmers that the machinery could not possibly be got ready, so as to be available for crashing their cane this year; a understand is with lew farming; for though Mr. Corooran has paid great attention to his cane, hosing, scarlfying, weeding, and trashing wherever it wanted it, according to my instructions, he neither subsoiled, drained, limed, nor irrigated it. I have not altered the opinion I expressed in my lectures. I still believe that, with high farming, 100 tons may be obtained to the acro. I hope to be in a position before long to try it myself.

The Chairman, in corroboration of what Mr. Hall had just side, observed that he could support Mr. Hall's opinion from his own experience, having sont the produce of a quarter of an acre of China cane to the Belmore mill last season, which had weighed twenty tons. He expressed himself strongly on the benefits arising from the application of lime to the soil.

Mr. Hugh Cameron inquired what would be got from rattoons.

ition of lime to the soil.

Mr. Hagh Cameron inquired what would be got from rattoms.

Mr. Hall: My experience in this colony is not yet sufficient to enable me to speak positively, but I am of opinion that it will exceed the produce of plant canes.

The Chairman then put the question,—"That Mr. Hall's offer, on behalf of the Colonial Sugar Refining Company, to pay the farmers 10s, a ton for their cane, they to cut, tie in bundles, load on carts, and unload into punts, and the farmers to draw from the field to the punts, and be paid 1s, per ton for drawing, be accepted." This was curried unanimously.

Mr. Hall informed the meeting that he had been instructed by the manager to announce to them that the Company would give two prizes of £50 each, for the best five up to ten acres of cane, available at the Chatsworth Island Mill in the season of 1871.

No other questions having been asked, the Chairman called for a vote of thanks for Mr. Melmoth Hall, for the graat encouragement he had that evening given the furners of the Lower Clarence, and he called on them to mark their sense of his courtesy and good humour, by giving him three times three choers. This was done accordingly.

Mr. Hall briefly accepted their kind acknowledgment of what he had that evening done as a tribute to the Colonial Sugar Company. He had formerly alluded to the possibility of one day seeing the farmers' sons all mounted on fine horses, their daughters wearing silk dreases, and playing on the piano-fluughtery—and riding in their carriages. (More langhter) This of course was fun, a good deal of it, but he had also said, and he would now repeat it, he hoped it would please God to preserve his life that he was one of the chief premoters, the material prosperity of the district would be immeasurably increased.

FLAGELI.ATION AMONG THE ROMANS, &c. [A. [From a "History of the Red in all Countries." By the Ret. Wm. M. Cooper, B.A.]

The sncient Romans carried the practice of flagellation further perhaps than any other nation; and there are several authors who refer to their use of the securge. Flagellatic emblems were common in every house; and the Judges of the nation were surrounded with an array of whips, securges, and leather straps, in order to terrify offenders and bring them to a seuse of duty; but a great number of instruments of flagellation, besides those mentioned above, were successfully brought into use for panishing slaves. Among those were particular kinds of cords, manufactured in Spain. The socurges had all different names. There was the fertila, a flat strap of leather, which was the mildest of all; then came the scutica, an instrument of twisted parchment, which was a degree more severe than the first-named; after that there was the fagella and the terrible flagellum, the severest of all, which was composed of plaited thongs of ox-leather. In the third satire of the first book of Horace, there is an account of the gradation in severity between the above-mentioned instruments of whipping. Horace lays down the rules which he thinks a Judge ought to follow in the discharge of his office, and also addresses himself, somewhat ironically, to persons who, adopting the principles of the first book of Horace, there is an account of the gradation in severity between the above-mentioned instruments of whipping shown the rules which he discharge of his office, and also addresses himself, somewhat ironically, to persons who, adopting the principles of the states, and the several shing, is what I me by no means afraid of." There were then the states which he horrid leather seourge; that you should only inflict the punishment o ceep renection on the surprising circumstance of "dead bullocks, that make incursions upon living men."

Vivos homines mortui incursant boves!

There are many other customs of the ancient Romans which might be quoted to illustrate the universal prevalence of flagellation. For instance, whipping and lashing were so generally considered among the Romans as the lot of slaves, that a whip or scourge became the emblem of their condition. Of this there is an instance in the singular custom mentioned by Camerarius, which prevailed at one time, of placing in the triumphal car, behind the triumpher, a man with a whip in his hand; the meaning of which was to shew that it was no impossible thing for a person to fall from the height of glory into the most abject condition. It was quite a sufficient excuse among the Roman ladies to whip a slave if, as Juvenal expresses it, their nose displeased them; in other words, if they were not satisfied with the state of their own charms. Their wantonness of power was carried still farther. It was a customary thing with some of them, when they proposed having their hair dressed with both nicety and expedition, to have the dressing-maid stripped to the waist, ready for flagellation, should she be guitty of any fault or mistake in performing her task. The fair ternagants at last curred these craelties to such a pitch that in the beginning of the empire, it was found necessary to restrain their license. During the

"LOTHAM" BY TRLEGRAPH.—A correspondent writes:—"It is reported that an American publishing firm endeavoured to make an arrangement with the Anglo-American Telegraph Company to have transmitted to them, from London, the whole of Mr. Disrueli's 'Lothair,' on the hypothesis that ten days' start of their rival publishers would compensate them for the outlay. The following figures exhibit the nature of this undertaking:—There are 982 pages in the three volumes of 'Lothair,' with an average of 160 words per page, giving a total of 167,120 words. The present rate for American messages is 30s. for 10 words, and the cost of 'wiring' 'Lothair' would therefore amount to £22,068. Supposing the company were willing to work this lengthy and interesting message at half-price, the cost would still amount to £11,784. This sum, at 1 dollar per copy retail (which would probably be the American price), would necessitate the sale of nearly 80,000 copies before this primary cost of telegraphy was covered, without reckoning the cost of production."

In a London Police-court, one of the "baby farmers," of whom we have heard so much of late years, was brought up, charged with cruelly neglecting her helpless charges. In the woman's house were found eleven children, all illegitimate, and who had nearly all been obtained "through advertisements." Several of the poor children were found to be suffering from narcotics, and their condition too plainly revealed the systematic cruelty with which they had been treated. The woman was remanded. "LOTHAIR" BY TRIBORAPH.—A correspondent rrites:—"It is reported that an American publishing irm endeavoured to make an arrangement with the

They have now on view an enormous stock of diningreem, drawing-room, bedroom, library, hall, and kitchen requisites of every description, which they want to dispose of to make room for several houses of furniture which they have purchased, and have not room to stow away until they make a clearance.

THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND CHAMPION:
by W. F. X. BAILEY, LL.D., Bishop of the Free Caurch of England in New South Wales, Hon. Vice-President of the Institute of Africa, Paris, &c.

OPINIONS SO THE PRESS:

"Lucid and powerful. Throws the whole papiticoliberal school quite on their backs. The papers of the rev. writer almost put him in the same rank with the profound learning of an Usaber, and the piercing indignant invective of a Junius and a Pascal."—JOHN BULL (London), February, 1857. Second Notice.

"A most upright and sealous defender of the Church—he wants neither learning, nor industry, nor sagacity, well to support his claims."—CENTLEMAN'S MAGAZINE (London), May, 1834.

"To say the least of it—a stremuous assault upon the Roman Catholic Church."—LITERARY GAZETTE (London), Juny, 1833.

"A spirited stack upon the Church's ememies, by one coquainted with the good cause for which he contends."—CHRISTIAN EXAMINER (Dublin), edited by Rev. Dr. Singer (strewards Lord Bishop of Meath), February, 1833.

"A spirited condjutor in the good cause of Protestantism—valuable and talented."—PROTESTANT JOURSAL (London), July, 1833. Third Notice.

"The Champion shows in a masterly manner, in language ast once nervous and eloquent, that the Church of Rome is now what she has ever feen—the enemy of truth—and the grand obstacle to the diffusion of the Gospel in its purity."—ESEEX STAMBARD (England), July, 1833.

MORT AND CO. have received instructions from S. A. Blackman, Esq., to sell by public auction, at their Sale Rooms, Circular Quay, on TUESDAY, the 6th September, at half-past 11 o'clock, That very compact well-watered station, known as the BALD RIDGE, together with 1800 sheep (more or less), and 600 head of cattle (more or less).

Bald Ridge, 'situate on the Castlercash or Big River, alont 77 miles from Coolah, 47 from Casediia, and about 90 from Mudges, consists of a 5-mile block of excellent country, with a frontage of five miles to the Castlercash River, and is capable of carrying 1000 head of breeding ratile and 2600 sheep in all seasons, the above number of stock having been easily depastured on it during the last severe drought.

On the homestead is a 6-roomed bark and slab house, with verandah; with a stockyard attached, capable of working 2000 cattle, and a well furnishing a newer-failing supply of good water. There is also a 4-roomed bark and slab house, with verandah, quite new; double sheepyard, with swinging gates, built of round pine, and perfectly dog-proof; and another well of watering any number of sheep.

It is unnecessary for the auctioneers to dilate on the advantages of a property possessing so many attractions as the "Bald Ridge." The character of the country, its proximity to the metropolitan market, and the brooding of the stock depasturing on it, combine to render it exceptionally valuable in the eyes of any one on the lookout for a really good investment.

SHARP, Eaq., and the spacious stabling and other ranges of substantial buildings in the large court-yard at the rear.

Duildings in the large court-yard at the rear.

The house is one of the most substantial buildings in the city, and finished in good style throughout. It is erected of brick on massive stone foundations, wide flagged verandah in front. It centains on the ground floor, hall, 7 feet wide; drawing-room, 24 x 20, now temporarily converted into a shop; dining room, 17 x 17; breakfast room, 17 x 13; kitchen, 20 feet in length; pantry, scullery, &c.

ON THE UPPER FLOOR, six fine bedrooms.

ON THE BASEMENT are spacious, dry, perfectly drained, flagged cellars, entered from a good flagged yard at the back of the house. At the rear of the whole is a large court yard, having upwards of 100 feet frontage to a right-of-way, and on which are ranges of most substantial premises, formerly used by the late Mr. Sharp, including first-class four-stall stable, coach-house, harbes room, store, laundry, and numerous well-finished out-buildings.

This property occupies a very valuable position in the city, extending from Hunter-street to the grounds surrounding the Union Club, a depth of about 200 feet. The premises are wellknown, and not to be excelled in regard to expensive elaborate finish and durability by any in the city of Sydney. Their extent and value can only be assertained from personal inspection; and as the proprietor's instructions are unreservedly to self, capitalists are invited specially to closely examine the whole prior to the sale,

PICHARDSON and WRENCH have restreet, Sydney, on MONDAY, 6th September, at 11 o'clock,

The following well known extensive valuable preperties.

1. EBSWORTH'S TWEED FACTORY, SUSSEX-STREET, comprising the most complete and extensive plant and machinery (with all recent improvements) in the Australian colonies. The SITE of the factory is very valuable, and contains

The SITE of the factory is very valuable, and contains an area of

1 ACRE 2 ROODS and 9 PERCHES, with entrance from Sussex-street, and extensive frontages to Duncan-street (out of Bathurst-street) and James-street (out of Sussex-street).

THE PERMISES are substantial. The principal building is of stone, four stories high, but divided inte eight separate spariments, with collars in basement.

The machinery and plant are of the most efficient character, the greater portion being modern, with the latest improvements, and only recently imported and fixed in the factory.

The FIRST FLOOR contains 3 sets carding engines cutters, brushing, and fulling machines.

The SECOND FLOOR, 2 spinning mules, winding machine, and one new set cashing engines.

The THIRD FLOOR, 2 patent self-acting spinning mules, and so new power looms.

The FOURTH FLOOR, 2 spinning mules, 2 hand looms, 1 patent spinning frame, 1 twisting frame, warping and beaming machines.

The CELLAR contains the burging and destings are distributed to the state of t looms, I patent spinning frame, I twisting frame, warping and beaming machines.

The CELLAR contains the burring and devilling machines, as also a store for dye-wares, &c.

This machinery is driven by one condensing 24 horse-power engine, and a new horizontal high pressure engine of 18 horse-power, both of which, together with the bollers, are in perfect order and capable of working a considerably more extensive establishment if required.

The TWEEDS manufactured at this factory are well known and esteemed by the trade, and orders for almost any pattern or texture can be executed.

The CAPABILATI.18 of the machinery are about 2006 yards weekly, ten hours per day at work; but by overtime arrangements can be made without difficulty to supply 3006 yards.

In addition to the main buildings are the following outoffices, viz.:—
A 2-story factory, with 24 hand looms. A dys-house, with engine of 8-horse power; securing machine, and toliers for dying wool, yarns, &c. An engineer's shop, with Muir's patent lathe, and tools complete, and a blacksmith's shop, the two latter enabling the manager to effect any repairs or alterations in the machinery.
The importance of this great colonial industry cannot be overestimated, and it is well known that the woollens turned out are second to more manufactured in the colony, and much superior, except perhaps in some minor points of exterior finish, than any imported tweeds.

The demand increases yearly, and the manufacturing capabilities of the factory can now be considerably increased at a small cost, as the working power is far in excess of the requirements of the present machinery.
A very large amount of capital has been judiciously expended on the property—a considerable portion only recenly in new improved machinery, the whole being complate is a very respect.

The FACTORY can now be INSPECTED WHILE AT WORK, and INVENTORIES OF THE MACHINERY and FLANT, together with CARDS TO VIEW, can be obtained on application to the Auctioneers. In addition to the main buildings are the following ou
